

At least 1 pesticide found in placentas

Health News | Home

www.carjet.co.uk

www.quality-sol.com

The analysis was developed at San Cecilio University Hospital in Granada, with women who had 2000 and 2002.

"We do not really know the consequences of exposure to disruptive pesticides in children, but we can predict that they may have serious effects, since this placenta exposure occurs at key moments of the embryo's development," Lopez said in a statement.

» Email this article (Click Here)

www.FitPregnancy.com

www.quality-sol.com

www.probuy.net

www.bookings.es

Ads by Google

- Eco-activist Ida Honorof dies | 19 Mar 2007
- Preeclampsia proteins identified | 19 Mar 2007
- Polluted fish can increase diabetes risk | 14 Apr 2007
- Senate to discuss stem cell research bills | 10 Apr 2007
- Did Punjab couple commit suicide in Nepal? | 01 May 2007

Your Comment

Ads by Google

Health Tips: Hearing, food, root canals

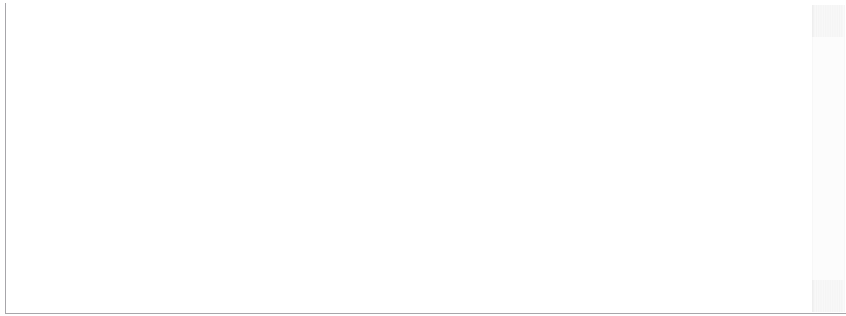

Granada Apartments

--

Search

Business
Entertainment
Environment
General
Health
Sports
Technology
World

Enter Verification code

25F251

More Health News click here

The views expressed in the articles are not necessarily those of earthtimes.org and we accept no responsibility for the views or opinions expressed in the articles either direct or indirect.

Home | News Archives | Browse | Feedback | About us | Disclaimer | Mobile/PDA | News Alerts

(c) 2007 Earthtimes.org, All Rights Reserved.