

Reuters Video
Oddly Enough
Weird, strange and funny news videos.
Watch now

REUTERS BUSINESS & FINANCE Your one-stop shop for business, investing and financial news

You are here: Home > News > Science & Health > Article

Fri 30 Jan 2009 | 12:33 GMT

HOMEBUSINESS & FINANCENEWSTop NewsUKWorldSportsTechnologyEntertainmentScience & HealthEnvironmentMotoringOddly EnoughLifestyleThe Great DebateBlogsSpecial ReportsVideoPicturesEditor's ChoiceWeather

Blocking trigger points may stop cluster headaches

Fri Jan 30, 2009 12:06am GMT

Email | Print | Share | Single Page

[-] Text [+]

NEW YORK (Reuters Health) - Excessive sensitivity apparently plays a role in cluster headaches, and blocking the hypersensitive muscle trigger points with local anesthetic may be beneficial in treating the condition, according to results published in the journal Head & Face Medicine.

Cluster headaches cause sudden, severe pain, often centered in one eye. Though the headaches tend to be short, they run in cycles, which may cause several headaches in one day or every few days. Most people with cluster headaches experience pain-free periods of several weeks or more between each headache cycle. About 10 percent of sufferers, however, experience chronic cycles, which can last a year or more.

Dr. Elena P. Calandre and colleagues from the University of Granada, Spain, conducted a study of 12 patients with cluster headache to see if trigger points could be identified, and if so, whether anesthetic injections at the trigger points were helpful.

Four of the subjects experienced episodic cluster headache and eight experienced chronic cluster headache. All were totally refractory to their current prescribed drug therapy.

At least one trigger point was found in every patient. In five of six patients, the researchers were able to stop a cluster headache attack in progress with an anesthetic injection. In six of seven patients, the injections were successful in preventing attacks.

When anesthetic injections were combined with preventative drug therapy, significant improvement was observed in seven of eight chronic headache patients.

In terms of adverse effects, one patient reported pain at the injection site. Rebound headache following injection was observed in four patients.

"As it is estimated that between 10 and 20 percent of cluster patients are refractory to treatment or develop resistance to it, the potential role of...trigger point blockade should not be underestimated," Calandre and colleagues write.

"Trigger point injection is an easy to perform and well-tolerated therapy, its main drawback being that it is rarely wholly effective" when given alone, they note. "The combination of active trigger point (blockade) with prophylactic drug treatment in the treatment of refractory cluster headache remains a therapeutic option worthy to be investigated."

SOURCE: Head & Face Medicine, December 2008.

© Thomson Reuters 2009 All rights reserved.

SHARE: Del.icio.us Digg Mixx My Web Facebook LinkedIn

MORE HEALTH NEWS

- Stem cell transplants show promise for MS: study
- Philippines says finds four new human Ebola cases
- Senate votes to expand children health program
- U.S. peanut firm expands salmonella recall
- More Health News...

ALSO ON REUTERS

Video: Robinho denies sexual assault allegations

Video: Shock over Queen death plot claim

Video: Baby pandas welcome Chinese New Year

EDITOR'S CHOICE Pictures Video ArticlesPotty ParrotRobot SweatRourke In Ring

Text BIS to 84070
and get Reuters business news alerts straight to your mobile

Premium messaging rates apply

GET MORE REUTERS MOBILE ALERTS

MOST POPULAR ON REUTERS UK

Articles Videos

- Girl marries dog in bizarre ritual
- Thai Scorpion Queen breaks record
- "Noah's Ark" found off Peru
- World's longest legs
- Shock over UK Queen death plot claim
- Australian topless bathing ban urged
- And Finally... Hostel Flyover
- Brazil model dies from infection
- Potty-trained parrot
- Dissolving 300 bodies

Video

Brochures provided by Dianomi

advertisement

Luxury travel to USA and Canada brochures from Kuoni Travel and others
Free guides to online trading

