Tiffs With Partner Leaves Women More Upset Than Men

After a tiff between couples, it is the women who fret, get emotional and feel upset much more than men.

Women felt sad, moped around and experienced guilt after an argument with their partner, lover, or spouse, a study conducted among 142 people has revealed.

The study also showed that most of the fights were precipitated by men as they often came out with harsh words, strong emotions which caused hurt.

Researchers from the University of Granada said, "As society establishes certain rules on the composition of men-women relations, it also establishes some rules on how both are expected to act in certain conflictive situations."
