UGRmedia

UGRmedia is a media repository for the University of Granada in Spain. The university is a public university with over 60,000 undergraduate and postgraduate students who study at the UGR, with another 20,000 students taking additional courses. It was founded in 1531 and is located in close proximity to the Mediterranean coast.

About UGRmedia

The UGRmedia site was launched in October 2012 and is another great example of a non-English language site using HWDMediaShare. It features an array of videos, some of which record interviews with students and lecturers. There are also videos taken from conferences and presentations. It is a simple and attractive site, which provides a great resource for the university - and a great example of HWDMediaShare being used effectively.

One of the reasons we chose to feature this website is because it uses the VideoDrome template by JoomlaXTC. This template was specifically designed for our legacy software, hwdVideoShare. It was a very popular template, and users were disappointed it wasn't fully compatible with the new HWDMediaShare product. However, the UGRmedia site is a great example of how this template can be used with HWDMediaShare, and look fantastic.
